TWO UD PROFESSORS RECEIVE ALUMNI AWARDS

DAYTON, Ohio -- Two University of Dayton faculty members have received 1992 UD Alumni Awards for excellence in teaching and scholarship.

They are Michael H. Barnes, professor of religious studies, and Prabuddha De, the Standard Register-Sherman distinguished professor of management information systems.

Barnes received the Alumni Award for Teaching. De received the Alumni Award for Scholarship. The awards are made annually. Recipients are selected by a faculty committee.

Barnes is known for his lively teaching style. He also directs the UD CORE program, an interdisciplinary curriculum that fulfills and integrates the University's general education program.

De has a national reputation as a cutting-edge researcher. His recent research has dealt with machine scheduling in advanced manufacturing environments. De has published 40 journal articles and serves on the editorial boards of three major journals.

Barnes lives in Dayton; De is a resident of Springboro.
